

1st Sunday of Advent November 30, 2025

The alarm of Advent sounds. Jesus tells us the Lord is coming, but we will not know the time.

“Two men will be out in the field; one will be taken, and one will be left. Two women will be grinding at the mill; one will be taken, and one will be left.” (Mt 24:40-41)

These words from Jesus are reminiscent of the ones from Matthew’s Gospel where the goats and sheep are separated, and the sheep (who treated the lowly with dignity) were given eternal life, and the goats (who ignored those in need) received eternal punishment.

The harshness here may demonstrate the extreme importance of the lesson—We must not sleepwalk comfortably through life and delay the good works that our God calls us to.

We are called to wake up and open our doors to God here and today. Promising openness to God next week, or referring back to the good works of our past, is not going to cut it with this Teacher. Be ready for His test at all times.

How are we opening the door to God? Are we providing for the hungry, enclothing the naked, visiting the unwell and imprisoned, and welcoming the stranger? How will we choose to spend our time this holiday season? Are we offering reasons for rejuvenation to others, and to ourselves?

God of Light, help us see the light of your path, to share our light, and to allow others to share their light with us.

—Justin Lorenz
