

Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time February 8, 2026

In the readings this Sunday, the prophet Isaiah and Gospel writer Matthew echo each other with practically the same message: Be a light to the world by doing the works of mercy.

St. Paul’s message to the Corinthians, on the other hand, seems to reach out to those who are interested in shining their light, but are afraid of doing so, or fear not having the right words. “I came to you in weakness...and my message...[was] not with persuasive words of wisdom...”

However, he then admits that he overcame his fear with confidence in God’s Spirit residing in him.

Do I lead with a “demonstration of Spirit and power” like Paul does?

One martyr who we can turn to now who reveals the power of God’s Spirit is the Salvadoran Jesuit, Rutilio Grande. Grande spent years as a priest with low self-worth. In his late thirties and as a result of Vatican II, his sense of purpose changed from setting an example of perfection to an example of loving self-sacrifice and action. He supported seminarians to live among peasants in the country and worked with the poor to help them see the sources of their oppression. There was much pressure to silence him by the wealthy, especially after an incite Mass in honor of a foreign-born priest who was arrested and deported with no charges. He denounced the sham of democracy in El Salvador. He preached:

“I’m afraid that if Jesus of Nazareth came back, coming down from Galilee to Judea, that is from Chalatenango to San Salvador, I daresay he would not get as far as Apopa, with his preaching and actions...They would accuse him of being a rabble-rouser, a foreign Jew, one confusing people with strange and exotic ideas, against democracy, that is, against the minority...and they would undoubtedly crucify him again.”

A month later, he and two others were in a van when they were gunned down. And his death would help inspire the conversion of a conservative and pious archbishop named Oscar Romero to work for justice and find the same fate.

May Rutilio Grande’s example instill a sense of God’s power within us, that we might shine our lights beyond our fears and out into the world.

HUMILITY OF CHRIST SATURDAY, FEB 28, 2026

10:00AM CT

Carondelet Motherhouse
6400 Minnesota Ave., St.
Louis, MO 63111

Join us for our Lenten Prayer: Dwelling in the Humility of Christ will focus on the humility of Christ through prayer, song, meditation and quiet reflection. Together, we will explore how our baptism calls us to humbly bring God's love to our community, church and world during these tumultuous times. A continental breakfast will follow the prayer service. All are invited. Registration closes Feb. 14. Link to register: Lenten Prayer: Dwelling in the Humility of Christ

Please join us for Turtles: Turtles is a monthly gathering of Cronan women who read and discuss books on spirituality and current issues. The difference between Turtles and the SJ book club is that Turtles are slower at reading the books – we break the book down into several parts to read and share over several meetings. This way, we can delve deeper into the book’s content, spend some time socializing, and don’t have to read a whole book every month. Yes, there are wine and snacks! We meet the third Monday of the month at the home of one of our members. We will be starting a new book on February 16 and I’ll share the title as soon as I have it. This is the perfect time to join us. If you are interested email Diane – diane@stcronan.org or Yvonne DeHart dehartyi@aol.com or call Diane at 314-941-4933.
